Summary Filmmaker Cazhmmere is a seventh-generation black Canadian. Despite this deep history, she's constantly asked to explain where she's from — even though the answer is always "Canada." Cazhmmere is a proud Canadian. Her ancestors were among the first black settlers to come to Canada — her family has spent hundreds of years weaving itself into the fabric of our nation. Despite this deep history, Cazhmmere is constantly questioned about where she is originally from. In Deeply Rooted, Cazhmmere will change your perception of what a multi-generational Canadian family looks like. In a country that is widely known for being a "global melting pot," our nation can easily forget that not every person of colour is a newcomer to Canada.
