Course: NBE3U

Phone Extension(s): 547

Teacher(s): S. Le

Email: sarah.le@ugdsb.on.ca

Program Leader: S. Le

Course Description:

This course emphasizes the development of literacy, critical thinking, and communication skills through the study of works in English by Aboriginal writers. Through the analysis of literary texts and media works, students will develop an appreciation of the wealth and complexity of Aboriginal writing. Students will also conduct research and analyse the information gathered; write persuasive and literary essays; and analyse the relationship between media forms and audiences. An important focus will be the further development of students' understanding of English-language usage and conventions.

Prerequisite: Grade 10 English, Academic

Big Ideas (overall learning outcomes for the course):

- The voices of Indigenous people are ones of resistance and resilience
- Writing is a process
- Good readers use strategies to construct meaning from texts
- Communication strategies must be deliberate and reflect purpose and audience
- The media literate analyze how conventions and techniques of different media are used to create meaning

Overall Curriculum Expectations:

Starting on page 41, the full curriculum for NBE3U is available at:

<http://www.edu.gov.on.ca/eng/curriculum/secondary/nativestudies1112curr.pdf>

Instructional Strategies:

Westside teaching staff will use a variety of instructional strategies to help students develop and improve skills in the following areas: character, citizenship, communication, critical thinking and problem solving, collaboration and teamwork, and creativity and imagination.

Assessment and Evaluation:

Formative assessments are used to improve student learning by providing varied opportunities to demonstrate an understanding of course expectations in preparation for summative evaluations. Summative evaluations test groups of key expectations. Failure to complete a summative evaluation may result in the expectations of the course not being met and the credit not being granted.
